Abstract

The invention refers to versions of an extra shade tent to hand held umbrella structure. One version of separated additional tent sections consists of telescopic or other types of poles, soft light walls, and an underlay, and other versions consist of an umbrella hand lever extension , soft wall-pulls, ground anchors, and an underlay. The tent section may connect to umbrella skeleton arms at several end points of the open umbrella form, and may attach by the other end to the ground, grass, sand, or to any underlay, outdoor bed, or to other objects providing fixation, and tent stability.

The invention refers to an umbrella in which a hand lever can be removed in any manner under the supported roof in a tent position.

The invention refers to an umbrella skeleton with telescopic arms that includes extra poles of an umbrella-tent structure.
